

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A nitride semiconductor device includes a semiconductor layer, a first electrode for establishing an ohmic contact
5 disposed on the semiconductor layer, and a second electrode on the first electrode, having a different shape from that of the first electrode. A joint region is formed with the upper layer of the first electrode and the lower layer of the second electrode. The joint region comprises an element of the platinum
10 group.